South Florida Water Management District Year-Round Landscape Irrigation Rule

The South Florida Water Management District promotes water conservation for its many benefits in meeting the growing demands on South Florida's limited water supply. The District's Comprehensive Water Conservation Program, including a Year-Round Landscape Irrigation Conservation Measures Rule, is designed to accomplish a measurable change in water use and develop a lasting water conservation ethic. Measures in the program were developed with input from water users across the region over a series of public workshops.

Adopted by the SFWMD Governing Board in November 2009, District-wide Year-Round Landscape Irrigation Conservation Measures establish a two-day-a-week landscape watering schedule throughout the District, with a three-day-a-week provision for water users in some counties.

The District rule applies when the source of water for irrigation is a utility, lake, pond, canal or well. The use of low-volume irrigation methods – including micro-irrigation, container watering and hand-watering with a hose and automatic shut-off nozzle – is allowed anytime. Irrigation using reclaimed water and harvested rainwater also is allowed at anytime. The District may grant variances for users of "smart" irrigation technologies described in Senate Bill 494, passed by the Florida Legislature in 2009.

Some city and county governments have adopted local landscape irrigation ordinances that differ from the District rule. To determine watering days and times in your area, contact your local government or visit www.sfwmd.gov/2days and click on the county links.
